A FORT DONELSON HERO.

Among the Union troops in the battle at Donelson, was an Illinois soldier who had been remarkable for his boldness and wickedness in camp. For years previous to calisting, he was a ringleader in drinking, gambling, and almost every other vice. Removed from restraints in the army, he often shocked his commiss by his wickedness and profanity. In the battle on that sad morning in February last, he distinguished himself by courage and daring. In one of the charges of the enemy, he received a terrible wound from a minic hall in the thigh. As he lay bleeding on the buttle-field, his life blood raingling with the snow, he thought of death and eternity. His sins are a before bein like a mountain, and filled him write dismay . He was removed to a hospital in a western city, where every thing which kindness and medical skill could suggest was done for his remedical skill could suggest was done for me the life. There he lay on his cot, suffering intense pain for long weary weeks. He was visited by Christian ladies and ministers, who sought to lead him to the fountain opened for sin and medical states of the largest. However, those single work within 30 lead him to the fountain opened for sin and medical states and their ladies were not in vain in leading and their ladies. cleamess, and their labors were not in vain in the Lord. The heart which for years lad been stout against God, lugan to relent. Penilunce, that sweetest canolion of the mind, was often seen in his eyes and heard in his voice. One Sabath afternoon, while the writer was in the room, he requested some ladies present to join him in singing.

"There is a fountain filled with lib od." etc.

The wounded soldier seemed to drink in the spirit of that hyun. After reading a few verses concerning the dying their, carnest prayer-was offered for his salvation. While all were kneeling thus before the Lord, he was pleased to hear and answer. The affileded man burst into tears, and subbed aloud, "Oh Jesus, save a guilty sinner." He continued weeping and praying for some time. Then the friends sing that precious hynur,

> "Just as I am, without one plea But then thy blood was shed for me."

There was not one dry eye in that room-all The colder's hand in his, he said, "Now, Mey will you not give yourself to Chair, his as just received at the City Music flore, novil will." His whole soul was filled with a sense of his guildiness and Carist's merey. As the friends who witnessed this affecting sepia of him, they expressed the hope he would soft him they were not disappointed. He had hold on Christ touched the hem of his gurnant, and was made the head of him they had he would soft him the head of him they had head of him they were not the world had he would soft him they were not the world had head on the head of him they were not the world had head on the head of him they were not the world had head on the head of him they were not the world had head on the world had head on the head of him they were not had head on the head of him they were not had head on the head of head of head of him they were head of head ceived the wound, when he slept in Jesus Though his sufferings were severe, he bone them with resignation, and was comforted in looking unto Jesus." He often expressed wonder that God should have spaced his life amidst all his wickedness. "Is not this a brand plack-ed out of the fire?"

SILENT EXAMPLE OF A YOUNG LADY. BY THE BALE OF BUNDLE OF LAWFON BROTHERS.

A young man whose prosperity exposed him to many temptations, being on an extensive tour, reported to his sister some of the incidents he met, thanking God that He had, as he trusted, kept him from falling. "Last week." he says, being about one hundred miles from Washington, I stopped at the United States Hotel, in the sitting-room of which I saw a large bill posted up, amounting that the lownhall had been changed into a theatre, and leased by a company of performers. The programms selected for that hight was an attractive one; and finding my business accomplished and nothing to do, I debated in my own mind whether I should go and see the play, never having seen one in my life. In a state of uncertainty I walked the street, and suon bound myself in front of the theatre. As the doors re not open, I walked to the next corner when a young lady passed me with a small hymn-book in hard.

"Where is she going! thought 1. To some sick person, or it may be to a prayer-meeting."

At all events, I will see. So I followed her, and she soon entered the lecture-room of a very humble little church, where a small rangregation of Christians had come together to call upon the name of the Lugh. I need not say that the idea of entering the theatre was already banishel from my mind. I experienced more tra pleasure from that little meeting than I could have done from any worldly amusement.

"Soon a young soldier entered, and we sat upon the same seat." I spoke with him, and gave him a good book, which may God bless. I could not impredict on the power of the silent example of that young lady, the results of which can only be revealed at the bar of God."—American Messenger:

"No," answered the child with an causest shake of the head, "no, it is not all mine. I always go halves with God. Half I shall keep and half I shall give him." "God owns the world ; he does not want it," said the gentlemon; if the silver and the gold and the cattle on a thou and hills belong to him.? The little bay holded puzzled for a moment. GOVERNOR SEYMOUR'S MESSAGE.

The message of the Governor of New York is somewhat remakable and derives an unusual importance as the first move of a grand scheme to organize a National Conservative Party, socalled—in opposition to the admistration, and laving reference to the reconstruction of the Democratic Party, and the election of the next President, :: He denies that slavery is the cause of the war, but looks for it in the growth of "local prejudicer" for the last fifteen years. He says," in There is not a calamity we are suffering, which was not clearly foretold by our timbers as the result of passion and local prejudiese which have grown up during the last lifteen years." But we would ask what gave rise to these Gloral prejudices !" What was the danse of this feeling of sectional opposition ! What, we ask, but the eternal antagonism that must always exist between freedom and boudage-between the Democratic principles of live and equal political rights, and restrictions and unequal bundens of a monarchical or des potic form of government. To get up a cry The following are some or two ngo process in the sum time cover, each manage as an arched Copilal:

The following are some or two ngo process in the sum time cover, each manage as a state in this case, is absurd. No theff-origin excellenge can successfully conceal from the seeker after truth, the real issue at stake in this contest. The origin of these Glocal prejumities; dates further back than differen or thirty years ago. The futhers of this Republic, when a swetched cakes that sold last neck at the beginning, between slavery and freedom, and dreaded these very consequences which we are now reaping. The only hope that cheered them, in view of this all important subject, was the probable gradual abolition of slavery, and the substitution of free States for slave. And no doubt? this would now di conservation and collegiism in order to have been the case but for the discovery of the cotton gin, whileh had the effect to raise the value of slave labor, and made the slave more valuable to his master than ever before. Hence there has been always more or less a clashing between the interests of the two sections of our country, until it has cubminated in a terrible held. There was a warrant tried against Jeremish civil war -but now it must be fought out and setting right. Reconstruction is out of the questions. The heresy of State rights, to ig on the evening of the 31st of December. The lesenactments of the National Legislature, and to set up on their own responsibility i whenever a State is dissatisfial diast be forever expanged from our country. Nor will opposition to the present administration or the reconstitution of the Democratic party, bring about reconstruction of the Union as it was-never the issue is upon us whether we wi the issue is upon us whether we will ene not of our own choosing---no, augn us--and now let those

A peace founded upon a right decision of the momentous questions evolved by this civil war, is the unity peĥer that it were desirable to behold, as it beyond all doubt, would be the only peace that could be regarded as having the least chance to be lasting or permanent.

To admit the possibility of such a Convention ignores the legitimate function of the Contesterate Government. The States of the Contesterate Revenuent authority over their foreign silture to a common Executive and Legislature.

They cannot now take a single step in any desi-ing with breign metions without violating the sol-eum compact by which they created that Govern-ment. The States of the Union are precisely in the same affitude toward the Government of the Union. The home results its results of the the same affitude toward the Government of the Union. They have no authority or power to treat with the Southern States, or any other foreign states. Such acts are distinctly the province of the Federal Government alone. No arrangement of a national character no treaty or preparation for a treaty of peace between the two countries now at war's possible or lawful except such as may be made by the President and Senate of the Toutedageth States with the Parkings of the Providence of the Toutedageth States with the Parkings of the Providence of the Province of the Providence of the Province of the P omederate States and the President and Sonat-of the United States.

The people of the North who wish to see the end of these hostilities and troubles must, first of ill agree to a recognition of the Confederate flowcomment. Without that, the war tants go on for-ever. Even aomisatice supposes such recogni-tion. Northern speculation upon a general con-vention of States is, therefore, mere moonshine, so long as the South remain enconquered. Dear News, -- Since my last we have been quietly waiting for the smoke of the battle to clear off so long as the Soath remain enconquered. If the armies of the United States were to succeed in driving the persons composing the Confederate Government entirely beyond their territory, and destroy all hone in the speople of the restoration of the Confederate authority, a general convention of the two nations, without regard to the constituted authorities of either free to form any new relations which they though fit, might then become a matter for consideration with the individual inhabitants of the land.

At present, the project of this Convention may be noticed only as a symptom of a strong desire for peace among the Northern people. Nothing will come of it for some time. So long as the present Executive and Congress remain in office, their discretion has no cheek. They are continitted to the continuation of the war to the last extremity.
